A simple, economical method for producing FK506-loaded aqueous humor for ocular treatment of graft-versus-host disease (GVHD) is described. FK506 in its free or salt form was successfully incorporated into the aqueous humor of the rabbit eye, then topical or intraocular instillation of the drug were performed in an animal model of the disorder. The concentration of drug in the aqueous humor was significantly increased after topical FK506 instillation, whereas the intraocular FK506 ophthalmic solution preparation resulted in enhanced levels of drug when compared with the vehicle-treated group. The ocular tissue specimen was easily obtained, and a simple, but reliable drug incorporation method was also provided. The studies indicate that the method is useful for drug delivery of FK506 into the eye, which is of practical importance in the treatment of GVHD.Q: Excel VBA macro to organize data into 2 csv I am trying to create a macro in
